CHANCE LOOMS FOR AIRPORT

McGregor Says He's Working For Part of U. S. Fund Canton Gave Up.

Efforts are under way at Washington by Congressman J. Harry McGregor to obtain for Mansfield's municipal airport at least part of a fund of $2,000,000 which had been allocated for air field development at Canton, plans for which have been abandoned.

War department officials, in allocating funds for local airports included in the Civil Aeronautics administration program a few months ago ignored Mansfield's application for aid although the army and navy for more than a year have been utilizing facilities for the elementary training of pilots.

In addition to the schools for the active armed services scores of pilots received their training at municipal airport before going to active duty in the coastal patrol service and the ferry commands.

McGregor indicated in a telephone conversation with The News-Journal, that Canton had decided it inadvisable to accept the $2,000,000 allocation due to the absence of a suitable site.

Boy Sees Train Afire, Mansfield Firemen Respond

There's a boy in the village of Intario today who merits the plaudits of the Erie railroad for probably saving an empty eastbound train from destruction by fire last night.

Firemen from No. 2 engine house here also were commended by Captain L. R. Zimmerman, acting fire department chief, for their work in extinguishing flames which destroyed the roof and walls of a wooden passenger coach and prevented their spread to other parts of the train.

When the train, composed of an Erie engine and about 30 Boston and Maine railroad coaches, was passing through Ontario the unidentified youngster attracted the attention of trainmen, by his shouts and pointing gestures, to flames which were lapping through the roof of a coach midway of the train.

Babies Dress Up, Munch Birthday Cake and 'Sing'

Yes, 'Twas a Very Special Occasion for Carol Ann, Sarah Lou and William Jerome Solomon Today.

By ESTHER SMITH

Mansfield's only set of triplets in 15 years celebrated their second birthday anniversary today by doing just what three little children would be expected to do on such a momentous occasion.

The son and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll J. Solomon, 431 Edgewood road wore their best frocks, pink ones they received for Christmas, they looked at pictures of teddy bears, puppies and even a lion on a stack of greeting cards, and they consumed a generous helping of birthday cake and ice cream.

Carol Ann, Sarah Lou and William Jerome—who arrived in that order at Mansfield General hospital, Jan. 15, 1941—were in a much better position today to appreciate a special occasion than they were a year ago when they were still spending most of the time in the nursery upstairs.

They had their dinner in the family dining room and they fed themselves the tuna fish, vegetable and baked potato served on their plates. Last year cereal and egg yolk were the main items on the birthday menu.

"The children are now able to help themselves a little bit," said Mrs. Solomon, who has a willing

TULSA, Okla. (AP) The savagely hacked bodies of a mother and daughter were found on their blood-soaked bed -- victims of a sex slayer who raped them, then prepared a breakfast of eggs and toast and sat on the bed beside the bodies of his victims to eat it.

The slain women are Mrs. Luzzia Stewart, 50, and her daughter, Mrs. Georgia Green, 31. Their bodies, clad in brightly colored pajamas which had been ripped to shreds, were found last night by Mrs. Green's employers who went to the apartment to inquire about her absence from work.

It was the second murder in the neighborhood to follow the same pattern.

Weird Characters Play Roles In Flynn's Courtroom Drama

HOLLYWOOD — As weird an assortment of Hollywood characters as ever walked across the silver sheet came to court today to complete the story of Betty Hansen's night with Errol Flynn.

There was the handsome Flynn, himself, worried about the prospect of 50 years in the penitentiary if convicted on statutory rape charges. There was the 17-year-old Miss Hansen, who's story about her relations with a succession of men, made the kind of literature the train butchers used to peddle.

There also were the Misses Lynne Boyer, who changed from blond to brunet in 30 seconds flat, and Chi-Chi Toupes, a strip-tease dancer. They both entertained at a dinner in Bel Mansion, which ended, Miss Hansen charged, with Flynn taking her upstairs, undressing her, except for her socks, and attacking her.

Miss Hansen was to finish her story, under cross examination by Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler, and to deny as vigorously as she could his not-so-heavily veiled hints that she considered Flynn a sucker in a town of suckers.

"Didn't you," he demanded, "tell

SEE FIRE TRUCK DELIVERY SOON

McGregor Gets Priority For Mansfield: Ladder, Pumper Equipment Speeded.

Mansfield, accorded an A-10 priority through efforts of Congressman Harry J. McGregor, stands a "reasonable chance" of early delivery of vital fire-fighting equipment which has been on purchase order from two months to more than a year.

Service-Safety Director, Fred B. Wolff today reported that word from McGregor indicated that the Seagraves company, Columbus, is completing construction of an aerial ladder truck ordered two months ago with funds accruing from a special fire department levy and an appropriation by council, and that delivery could be expected "soon" under the A-10 priority rating.

In addition, Wolff said that Seagraves salesmen indicated recently that February delivery of a fire pumper ordered a year is contemplated if emergency priorities from other communities or war plants do not interfere.

Criticism to Wolff and Mayor W. J. Locke following the $75,000 blaze at the Hartman Electric company war plant Tuesday night were directed at the deficiencies of old or out-moded equipment and not at the fire department personnel, officials said today.

UMW Chief Troubled as He Reports Only 9,300 Out on Strike.

CONGRESS ANGERED

Ickes Warns That Government Could Take Over Mines. Raps Tie-up.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The War Labor Board made an eleventh-hour attempt today to settle the strike of miners in the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania in a desperate hope to prevent use of army troops to reopen struck mines.

While congress clamored for drastic action, the labor board called before it John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, the heads of 22 union locals conducting the outlaw strike, and representatives of five major coal companies whose mines have been closed.

Lewis, deeply troubled, carried with him reports showing that only 9,300 of the 90,000 miners in the authracite fields were on strike. This was in contrast to unofficial estimates by the labor board that 18,000 were idle.

It was learned that Lewis as long ago as Jan. 4, appealed to the hard coal miners not to strike in their demands for a $2-a-day wage increase. At that time, Lewis sent letters to be posted in all union halls in the hard coal fields calling for settlement of the miners' wage demands in "an orderly manner . . . so that victory can be had not only on the battlefronts of the world, but on the production front of our mines and factories."

Sources close to Lewis denied

Berlin Worried Over Fate of Volga Forces

Officers Reported Fleeing Stalingrad Area as Soldiers Get Death-Duty Sermon; Fierce Fighting Rages Around 22 Trapped Divisions.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's armies on the lower Don, selling their lives at a rate of more than one a minute, were pictured in Soviet dispatches today as reeling back on the approaches to Rostov, while the Russians captured at least six more towns and killed 1,800 Nazis in 24 hours.

Soviet headquarters said the Red armies crushed repeated counterattacks by "big enemy tank and infantry forces" and continued to roll forward.

Simultaneously, the Berlin radio for the first time betrayed alarm over the morale of 22 Nazi divisions trapped in the narrow Don-Volga corridor before Stalingrad. In a special broadcast, the radio preached a death-and-duty sermon to Hitler's soldiers "who see no sense in holding on," and told them bluntly:

"Personal wishes are of no account. It is up to the soldier to carry out orders in a spirit of blind and unquestioning confidence."

The broadcast came in the wake of Soviet reports yesterday that high-ranking German officers were escaping from the Stalingrad trap by plane.

Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged the Russians were attacking with "unabated fierceness" in the vast battle area along the lower Don and in the Caucasus.

On the Stalingrad front the Nazi command said German troops were defending themselves in bitter combat against continuous and heavy Soviet attacks.

The German command also reported sharp Russian attacks at Velikie Luki, on the central (Moscow) front, and in the north around Lake Ilmen and Lake Ladoga.

Today's Soviet mid-day communique said Russian shock troops, storming back through the ruins of a Stalingrad factory district, routed the Germans out of fortifications and houses, demolished 56 blockhouses, cleared a street and captured prisoners.

While the Red armies scored gains in three major sectors, Britain's smashing new air offensive turned from Germany to Nazi-occupied France, hitting the German U-boat nest at Lorient on the French Atlantic coast.

Two RAF bombers were listed as missing.

The British air ministry said Lorient was "heavily attacked" last night in the RAF's fourth successive night raid of the week. Previous assaults were directed at Germany's war foundries in the Ruhr, including the giant Krupp armament works at Essen.

Other developments in the global war saw quickening action in southern Tunisia, new RAF blows against Japanese-conquered Burma, and a surprise Allied attack on the Japanese in northeast New Guinea in which 116 enemy troops were killed.

SWOOP: Allied Ground Troops Smash Japs In Surprise at Lae

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—In a sudden swoop on Japanese positions near Lae, Allied ground forces routed the enemy in a sharp battle and killed more than 116 enemy troops, it was announced today in a communique which reported widespread air attacks on enemy bases.

As American and Australian jungle fighters slowly closed in on the stubborn and well entrenched Japanese invasion remnants at Sananandi Point on the Papuan coast of New Guinea, Allied units which have established themselves to the north in the jungles behind the Jap-occupied coastal fringe struck suddenly at the foe near Mubo, 10 miles south of Lae and approximately 115 miles north of the Sananandi Point battle area.

The battle was brief and bitter, and when the enemy fled they left at least 116 dead on the field, the communique said.

Meantime Allied aircraft of all types—fighters, attack planes, medium and heavy bombers—ranged over Japanese zones in the Lae-Salamaua area and swept east and west to New Britain and Timor in a series of unopposed attacks.

It was the second successive day bombers and fighters were over these areas and the effects of previous poundings was evident in the lack of Japanese resistance.

The communique made no mention of opposition of any sort.

Yanks Slash Toward Main Jap Lines

WASHINGTON —(INS)— American ground troops today are slashing toward the main Japanese lines on Guadalcanal while U. S. motor torpedo boats and planes are tightening the sea-air blockade around the embattled island to prevent supplies and reinforcements for reaching the enemy garrison.

ROUTED: Axis Subs Hounded Out of Caribbean Ship Lanes

(By International News Service)

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad—Hounded by an American counter-offensive, Axis submarines today have ceased their recent mass assault against strategic Caribbean shipping lanes.

The sinking of Allied ships in this area has been reduced strikingly within the past few weeks.

There was not a single attack by enemy subs during the latter part of December, indicating that the undersea raiders have found their Caribbean campaign too costly to continue.

Commenting on the withdrawal of Axis subs, Rear Admiral J. B. Oldendorf, temporarily in command of the Caribbean sea frontier, said:

"We cannot consider the submarine menace completely eliminated yet.

"It can be said that the subs -- for the time being, at least—have retired from the Caribbean area. We hope to keep them away."

The navy, because of security reasons, has not disclosed the number of Axis submersibles that have been destroyed. Indications are that the American ships and aircraft have inflicted heavy and damaging blows against the U-boats.

Admiral Oldendorf is commander of the Trinidad sector of the Caribbean frontier. He currently is in command of the entire region during the temporary ab-

Mary was prompt with consolation, although I guessed that she shared my malicious pleasure in the discomfiture Redfield had suffered at Philip Veritzen's hands.

"I don't wonder you're sore, Steve," she said. "That wasn't a bit clubby of my revered papa-in-law. But you must remember that you had committed lese majeste in its most flagrant form by daring to summon the great impresario to see you. It's a wonder he didn't bring an axeman and have you guillotined on the spot."

Steve's malevolent expression did not lighten, and I made up my mind that as soon as I could I would ask my father that the espionage on Steve be increased, for I was sure his mood held danger of injury to both Mary and Veritzen.

have done that," Steve said mo- "I'd about as soon he would rosely. "He killed the spirit and hope and soul in me. He might as well have killed the body."

Superb Acting.

He was acting superbly now. He was enjoying his own suffering, but Mary was quick to deflate him.

"Bravo, Steve!" she said laughing and clapping her hands. "That's a swell line, gorgeously rendered. It's too bad you can't incorporate it in your role. Auntie Madge will have to write you a play around it, so you can spout it."

"I'll never have a role again," Redfield said somberly. "Veritzen will see to that."

"What do you mean?" Mary asked quickly, and I knew that behind the query there was a distinct hope. "Did he say you were no longer connected with the company? That is one of his pet tricks—severing relations with an actor without notice if he gets angry He's had many a lawsuit, many a headache because of his hastiness, but he never learns."

"He didn't say it in so many words, but I could see that's what he meant," Redfield said

Mary looked into the venomous eyes of her leading man

"How many times have I asked you, Steve, to repeat his exact words?" she adjured him. "Now I have an appointment in just 10 minutes, and if I'm going to listen to you, you must make it snappy."

I knew the reason for her insistence. She was wild with anxiety lest Noel come back. If he found Stephen Redfield there he would be so furious at the actor's effrontery in coming after the last night's episode, that he might disregard my presence and that of Winters, and attack the actor again.

But Mary's adjuration to Steve seemed to have found its mark, for he began to speak rapidly, with anger in every syllable.

"He told me," he said, "that under no circumstances would he permit me to undertake my role tonight. He said that in the first place I could not do justice to it in my present mental and physical condition, and that he would not risk my reputation—nor his—on the chance that I might not come up to standard."

"That's only what he was sure to say, Steve," Mary commented. "You know how fussy he is about every detail of a production."

"And yet," Steve said stormily, "he's willing to risk an understudy in the role. No, I tell you, that's all boloney. It's a plot to get me out of the cast, and you're in it because you've fallen for Hayes."

Mary was on her feet, and there was fiery anger in her eyes and in every line of her lithe body.

"One more word like that and you go out of here pronto," she said, and I knew she was sharing my temptation to blurt out to the actor that his days with the cast were already numbered, not because anyone wanted to have John Hayes supplant him, but because my father had discovered Steve's subversive activities.

But the time for that revelation was not yet ripe, as Mary evidently remembered.

"You have now only five minutes," she told Steve. "Tell me what else my father-in law said, and if there's any of the five minutes left, I'll tell you what answers I know."

THE BOY FROM MAINE

By Katharine Brush

(Copyright 1943)

SYNOPSIS

In 1931, at the age of 30, Hobey Hadley—born Higgins in Maine—is master of ceremonies at the Club Europa in New York. His name is in lights, and so, too, is that of Bonnie Roberts, whom he first saw when she was two days old and he was 9 years old. There is something about Hobey that makes you notice him, even when he steps out of the spotlight and a pretty girl has taken his place in its blinding glare. He cannot sing, and admits it; but his way of presenting songs is entertaining. Hobey is well known and earns the $250 a week his employer pays him; he is still owed by the amount. His income is augmented by two radio-announcing jobs. He and Bonnie were neighbors on Mitchell's Island, Maine. All he remembered of her for years following his departure from the island was that he had saved her from drowning. The girl he never could forget is Rosalie Hastings, member of a rich Boston family, who composed part of the summer people on Mitchell's Island. Hobey's mother washed for some of them; he delivered the washings, and that's how he became acquainted with the lovely little Rosalie. Then comes a day when Julian Hastings, Rosalie's father, decides they will not return to the island—it is too slow for Rosalie. Hobey, being a good seaman at 17, is selected by Mr. Hastings to help him sail a sloop from Maine to Marblehead. Rosalie sees Hobey off.

CHAPTER III

In Portsmouth, the next afternoon, it was the same thing, only more so. There was the Navy Yard there, and in the town it seemed that every other person was a sailor, or a sailor's girl—and all the biggest vessels in the harbor were for war. Battleships, destroyers, submarines—he saw them all now. He even saw an aeroplane, and watched it fly.

They had two nights aboard the sloop, riding at anchor in these harbors, and Mr. Hastings slept like a stout grizzled baby in the other bunk, but Hobey did not sleep.

He kept himself awake deliberately—he went on deck sometimes, and sat there with his back against the mast and watched the harbor. Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts. Portland last night, Portsmouth now, Marblehead tomorrow, and then Boston. "You come and see me at my house in Boston"—Rosalie's shrill little voice, of far away and long ago. Well, now he almost would. He would be right in the same city. He could go and see the outside of her house and look at it—if he could find it.

Maybe not, though. Likely Boston was too big.

It was all planned. They were to leave the sloop at Marblehead and ride to Boston in an automobile and Hobey was to have a day or two of sightseeing there, before returning home. He would return by train. "Have to see Boston first," said Mr. Hastings casually, as if it wasn't anything; as if it had been settled all along. It hadn't been, and Hobey had not even hoped for it, although he knew that once you got to Marblehead you would be very near. Now it was promised, and it took his breath away. This was the ultimate in miracles.

"I didn't never think to get to Boston," Hobey said, and thus achieved the first emotional articulation of his life.

The state house dome was gold, instead of gray as in the pictures. Even with all the streets there were, there wasn't room for all the autos that were in the streets, and you went slowly, like a horse and buggy. Portland was a little place compared to this, with little buildings. You couldn't even see the tops of some of these. There were no trees to speak of, except in one special open space where there was nothing else—just trees and grass. Funny they'd left that. Where would the harbor be, in which direction, now? No telling. ENLIST TODAY, on a big sign. THE UNITED STATES ARMY BUILDS MEN! Horns blowing, drivers hollering at each other—noise all around you, fit to split your ears, and everybody out and going somewhere on the stone walks. More uniforms. Soldiers and sailors, and policemen, and a lot of others. Mr. Hastings' driver had a uniform, with leather legs. His name was Daniel. "You hop in front with Daniel, Hobey." . . . Well, he had, and look at him.

This was his first automobile ride, among all the other things it was.

There was no end to first experiences in the time that followed. That evening and the next three days, like the preceding three, were dizzying with novelty, impression crowding on impression. The building where he stayed—at first he thought it was a grand hotel and that its name was YMCA, pronounced, "Yimka," probably. The room he had all to himself, with curtains at the window and a great wide street eight floors below, to watch and listen to. The fascinating lavatory down the hall, like nothing ever seen. The elevator. He rode up and down, and up and down.

Daniel reappeared. It seemed that Daniel was to be his guide through Boston, now and later.

Daniel had another car with him this time, one called a Stutz, without a back seat to it, and without a top. He usually brought the Stutz thereafter, and Hobey came to know it very well, even before he comprehended that the tangled letters on the doors were Rosalie's initials, when your eyes untangled them, and that this must be Rosalie's own car.

She was away. She wasn't anywhere in Boston, after all. She had gone off again the day she came, to visit somebody somewhere else.

"Hyannis, I believe, sir," Daniel had said to Mr. Hastings, on the way in from Marblehead when they arrived.

This fellow Daniel was a funny one. Get him alone, and you found out. Sometimes he didn't say much, and then again he talked his head off, telling you as if you'd asked him that the thing was that he had flat feet, and that was why he wasn't in the army. They wouldn't take him, he kept telling you. He was a short fellow, inches shorter than Hobey, with a long stride when he walked, and with a loud, believe me voice. Whenever he said anything, it was as if he taught it. He bossed Hobey around, do this, do that, get out, get in, come on, quit rubbering, and once he said "I wish to God you'd buy yourself some other clothes."

"What for?" said Hobey in astonishment.

"What for?' The guy wants to know what for! Because you look like a hick from Hicksville in that getup—that's what for!"

He kept coming. Morning, afternoon and evening for three days.

In the mornings they went to places Mr. Hastings had suggested—there were orders, executed fast and furiously by Daniel. Harvard college, and the Massachusetts Institute of something, and the Museum of Natural History, and a library, and a church, and Bunker Hill, and Mr. Hastings' leather factory in Brockton—they went all through that on the third morning, through all the noise and smell.

"Well, Hobey?" Mr. Hastings said, when they stopped in and saw him in his office afterwards. "What do you think? How would you like to work here, eh?" But he didn't mean it. He was smiling when he said it. Well, never mind, thought Hobey, I wouldn't anyway. Not here. Not here exactly. Boston, though . . .

I'd like to stay here, he kept thinking, from the very first; and overnight this thought became, Maybe I'll stay here. Now he knew his mind's intention. Even the ways and means were fairly clear, by this third day. Tomorrow in the morning they would put him on the train for home—he would submit to that—but after that he would be free. They wouldn't go along with him to see what happened then. There would be nobody to keep him on the train—no one, and nothing.

He had a fight with Daniel at the last. It happened on the evening of the third day, and it had to do with Rosalie. They had not mentioned her before—they never should have mentioned her at all, and both of them would know it afterwards, for different reasons.

Hobey began it. There had been a two-hour interregnum during the afternoon, with Daniel elsewhere, driving Mrs. Hastings to a tea—this had seemed the perfect opportunity, and he had made his pilgrimage to Beacon street to look at Rosalie's house. He had been gravely disappointed in it, and not only because it was empty, figuratively speaking—the house itself had disappointed and perplexed and troubled him. He had dreamed a palace for her. In its way, her island cottage was palatial—but this wasn't. This was just a thin brick house stuck in a row, and nothing more.

He decided to ask Daniel, and even at the start he thought that they might get to Rosalie herself from this point; and he meant to try. He prepared his opening question in advance and then propounded it. Was Mr. Hastings very rich? Or maybe not so very?

Daniel replied in the affirmative, with emphasis, and with embroidery. He said that you could bet your life he was, that the old boy had plenty.

They were sitting in an ice-cream parlor at Revere Beach, at the moment. Daniel explained that Old Man Hastings was now fairly raking in the shekels, because why?—because the army needed shoes, and shoes took leather.

"I guess he'll be a multimillionaire by the time he's through. It wouldn't surprise me."

He nodded proudly. Then a moment afterwards, he wagged his head. "And nobody to leave it to, except the daughter."

Here it was.

"The daughter," Hobey said without expression.

"Yeah, Rosalie. Don't you know Rosalie? Sure you do," said Daniel. "You been working for the old boy on that island, summers, haven't you? You must have seen her some place."

"Yes," said Hobey.

"She's a wild one."

"What?"

"I say, she's a wild one," Daniel said meditatively again. It seemed to please him. "Ho," he said, "what I know about that baby doll!"

"I guess you don't know much," said Hobey shortly.

"Oh, don't I?"

"Not about her. Likely you mean somebody else."

"Don't make me laugh!" said Daniel, snorting. "Somebody else, is it? Listen, don't I drive for her, whenever she don't drive herself? Don't I know where she goes? ried man, and all over the place with him at night—"

The rest was lost in Hobey's violent interruption. "Now, then!" he said. "You hush your mouth! You got no call to talk like that!"

"Who hasn't? Say, listen—"

"You haven't! You, nor nobody!"

Daniel's amazement silenced him. This time he merely stared.

"Talkin' like that!" Hobey said again, with mounting rage. His face grew fiery, and his hands were fists. "What do you want to lie like that for?"

"Well, I'll be damned!" said Daniel, and suddenly he laughed. "Why, you poor hoob, I'm not lying . . . Why would I? I don't have to, about her. I was just telling you, that's all."

"You take that back! You lie! I guess I know!"

"You're batty," Daniel said dispassionately. He looked puzzled now, as much as anything. "Say, listen, what the hell's the matter with you?" he demanded. "What do you care if she's loose or not—"

"Boys! Boys!" said the proprietor, but no one heard him.

He was too late anyway. The country-looking boy had had enough, and he had reached across and hit the other fellow, hard and squarely in the mouth.

AWARDS TO BE PRESENTED AT BOND DINNER

Richland To Get 'County of the Month' Banner at Hotel Wednesday Evening.

Presentation of six or more awards in recognition of Richland county's effort in the November sale of war bonds will be made at a "county of the month recognition dinner" Wednesday night, Jan. 20, in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

At that time, the county will be cited for its achievement by the Ohio War Savings committee and will receive a county banner from the Standard Oil company, according to Paul M. Eliot, chairman of the Richland county war savings committee.

Philip J. Trounstine, state chairman of the War Savings committee, will be here to confer the honors. Harold H. Bredlow, executive secretary of the Ohio War Savings staff, will also be present, as will the nine war bond winners in the regional area and a number of other guests.

The county received the citation as "county of the month" on the basis of its November bond sales, exceeding $500,000, which were highlighted by the "Buy a Bomber" contest sponsored by the women's division. The contest alone sent sales soaring to $260,000.

Not only did the 65 Mansfield women's clubs participating in the contest meet the original goal of $175,000 for the purchase of a bomber but they sold enough bonds to purchase a $75,000 pursuit ship as well. Arrangements in Washington, D. C., have been made for the naming of both bomber and pursuit ship, Eliot said, and photos of the christening will be sent to the Richland county committee.

The three clubs leading the others in the sale of bonds will receive their awards at the dinner from Mrs. Louis J. Ott, county chairman of the women's division. Cottage Garden club will receive a $50 war bond as first prize winner, the Women's Auxiliary of the Postoffice Clerks, a $25 bond for the second prize and the Mansfield Garden club, $10 in war savings stamps as the third prize.

Defense chairmen headed the drives in each instance with Mrs. H. G. Miller directing the campaign waged by the Cottage Garden club, Mrs. William DeHart was chairman for the Women's Auxilinary and Mrs. William Bowers for the Mansfield Garden club. They will be present at the dinner as will the 12 members of the women's division.

Presentation of a flag and scroll to the county by the Standard Oil company will be a part of the evening's ceremonies. John B. Coleman, division manager, will make the presentation and Eliot will give the acknowledgment. These awards are in line with the company's policy of recognizing the county of the month in the bond sales program.

Mayor William J. Locke will be a guest at the dinner also the two local members of the state advisory committee, H. S. Black and Louis Bromfield.

Reservations for the dinner are open to the public and are available at $1.55 per person, according to Eliot. At least 200 persons are expected to attend the affair and reservations should be made not later than Tuesday morning, Jan. 19, Eliot said. They may be obtained both from the county war bond office and also through Mrs. Ott and the members of her

NEW TECHINQUE

MALTA (AP)—American sailors here are learning the best way of making a hit with girl friends. Instead of the usual box of candy, the best social entree is a hard-boiled egg or a ham sandwich. "You can do wonders with those items," said one young sailor.

Kentucky Farmer Arrives for First 'Trial' Job In County

Johnnie Kates, 22, first of a group of "hand-picked" Kentucky farmers expected to be given employment in Richland county, has arrived in Mansfield and is at work today on a "trial" basis at the Raemelton dairy farm.

To meet the existing farm labor shortage, the Farm Security administration, in cooperation with the U. S. Employment Service, Ohio State university and other agencies, has adopted the plan of "transplanting" farmers from submarginal lands to more productive localities. To bridge the gap, the farmers are given a short course of training at Ohio State.

Kates comes from Three Lanes, Ky. His prospective employer is E. M. Brown, superintendent of the Raemelton dairy.

The Farm Security administration supervises the selection of farmers for the training and is responsible for "filling the orders" from those in training for farm employment. The U. S. Employment service takes the "orders" from the farmers and supervises the ultimate signing of contracts following the trial period. Wage agreements are worked out between the employer and employe, with the employment service acting only in an advisory capacity in this connection.

Five more Kentucky farmers have been "ordered" by Richland county farmers, Handley said, with inquiries indicating that other farmers will also take advantage of this plan to employ farm help.

Kates' probation period is indefinite.

"It shouldn't take long for him to find out if he wants the job or long for me to find out if he is capable of doing it," Brown said.

Temporarily quartered on the farm, Kates expects to move his wife and three children into a three-room brick dwelling near the dairy if his trial employment is satisfactory to both himself and Brown.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—(ANS)—Add war oddities.

Parental authority has been thrown into reverse by military custom at a Miami Beach Officer Training school, and Captain J. E. Schuyler is rather confused, he says, in his efforts to be a real father to his son, E. V. N. Schuyler, also in the army.

"About the only thing I can do is to tell his mother and let her handle things," Capt. Schuyler confesses.

His son is a major.

THREE DIE IN CHAIR FOR FIVE RURAL KILLINGS

Woman Among Those Electrocuted as Climax to Bitter Row Over Kicking Mule.

COLUMBIA, S. C. Three persons, one a women, died in the electric chair at state prison today after the United States supreme court denied their request for a stay of execution—a sentence resulting from a rural argument which caused the violent death of five persons.

Mrs. Sue Logue, 43, was the first to die for the series of murders which began two years ago when a mule broke loose and kicked her husband's calf to death.

Next to be electrocuted was George Logue, her brother-in-law, followed by Clarence Bagwell, an itinerant plasterer, who, according to trial testimony, was hired to slay one of the principals in the case.

All three were pronounced dead within 22 minutes after Mrs. Logue entered the death chamber at 6:15 a. m.

The case started as a typical rural argument.

Dave Timmerman's mule broke out of the Timmerman pasture on a September day in 1940 and into the pasture of Mrs. Logue's husband Wallace, where it kicked to death a calf. The two men settled on $35 damages at the time.

A year later when Logue went to Timmerman's store to collect he demanded $50, which Timmerman refused to pay. Logue then, allegedly, became angry and was advancing on the storekeeper with an axe when Timmerman shot him to death. Timmerman was acquitted on a self-defense plea.

The second death in the string of five was that of Timmerman. He was killed one night when Mrs. Logue was "visiting" in Albany, Ga.

Two months after Timmerman's death, Sheriff W. D. Allen, deputy D. C. Clark, and Fred Dorn, a share-cropper were killed by gunfire from the Logue house.

Up and Down the Street

Yesterdays' snowy blustery weather didn't retard the speed of Mrs. W. B. Ford's Red Cross canteen workers in preparing a meal out of doors for Ohio Brass company employes, to gain practical experience in feeding large numbers of persons in a minimum amount of time. The group served 100 persons in 15 minutes according to a timekeeper who kept close check on the number of minutes in which 100 people could be served. The women fed about 30 employes they had not counted on but who showed up at the serving because they "heard the soup was good."

Any motorists wishing to have a close-up view of his 1943 license plates can go to the Richland county Auto club and see the one which Jack Berger, assistant-secretary, has framed for display purposes. And this is one sticker that won't come off the windshield very easily, Berger says. It is made of glossy paper with a very heavy coating of glue. The entire sticker is to be dipped in water before placing in the lower right inside corner of the windshield. On the sticker are three small blocks allowing room for the serial number of the plate license number for 1942 and the year, make any type of the vehicle.

Somewhere over the country today two Mansfield Senior high school youths are in quest of adventure. This is made known through requests to police by parents of a Leppo lane boy, 16, and a Rhein avenue companion, 15, who left their homes for classes Tuesday morning, so far not teaching that particular destination. Police were told that two boys answering descriptions furnished the searchers were seen during Tuesday morning on U. S. Route 42-N. One father said his son likely would have about $50 which he had been saving for "adventure."

WPB OFFICIAL CHECKS COAST PLANE PLANTS

Reports Women Are Biggest Offenders in 'Serious' Labor Problem.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — WPB officials declared today that "absenteeism" among workers, which is costing 300 planes monthly, is one of the nation's "most serious" manpower problems, not only in the aircraft industry, but in all war plants.

The seriousness of the problem was emphasized by the disclosure in Los Angeles by Charles E. Wilson, WPB production vice-chairman, that absenteeism in the aircraft industry alone is costing such a heavy loss of planes.

Wilson, in the company of army and navy representatives, is currently on an inspection trip through west coast plane factories to study the industry's problems and work out solutions which will permit a higher production rate.

In Washington, however, officials asserted that the absenteeism issue was acutely serious in shipbuilding, and other war industries.

An analysis of the situation has disclosed the following main reasons for absenteeism:

Failure of the worker to link his job up to actual war production, interruptions in work caused by material shortages, increased earnings which make the need for full-time work less necessary; transportation difficulties and housing problems in overcrowded areas; and wartime complications in shopping.

Officials said that, strangely enough, the rate of absenteeism was highest among woman war plant workers because of the lack of nurseries to care for children, illness among children and the necessity of devoting time to the growing complexities of rationing.

This fact was believed to be particularly serious in the aircraft industry where seven out of 10 new workers hired have been women.

A survey of a large plant disclosed that absenteeism was at its highest rate on Mondays, particularly on a Monday following a payday. The absentees simply see an opportunity for a two-day holiday, it was said.

SEES RENEWAL OF LEND-LEASE

Poll Shows Legislators Are In Favor of Continuing FDR's Authority.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Approval by the house foreign affairs committee of renewing the administration's authority to extend lend lease and to the Allies appeared certain today on the basis of an Associated Press poll of a majority of the committee's membership.

Moreover, it seemed likely the bill would reach the floor—probably in late April—bearing an almost unanimous endorsement by the committee, which is composed of 15 Democrats and 10 Republicans. There was none among those reached who expressed opposition to the program, many who voiced approval.

Authority for the administration to embark upon the far-reaching lend-lease program was given by congress two years ago only after a long and acrimonious pre-war fight between interventionist and non-interventionist groups in the house and senate.

That grant of power will expire on June 30. Its continuance has been regarded as one of the top-ranking issues which will be laid before the 78th congress. The poll came as the first definite indication of how the measure will fare.

Only two members among those reached—Rept. Mundt (R-SD) and Bolton (R-Ohio)—declined to say at this time that lend lease aid must be continued, and they said their judgment would depend on the evidence produced during forthcoming hearings before the committee.

Rep. John Vorys (R-Ohio) said, "It will be continued in some form or other. But we should have a careful examination of the agreements under lend-lease which will have such a far reaching effect in the future."

MANAGING BOARD AT FRIENDLY HOUSE ORGANIZES FOR YEAR

Friendly House board of managers re-elected seven members to the board for a period of two years Wednesday at the annual re-organization meeting of the group.

Re-elected were Donald S. Black, Norman L. Wolfe, Mrs. F. J. Schuster, Mrs. A. J. Goldsmith, Mrs. L. J. Schubert, Mrs. S. L. Palmer and J. William Bloor.

The remaining eight members of the board will continue in office another year with the exception of Miss Margaret Stuckler, who resigned in view of her entrance into the WAVES. Others on the board are M. P. Wolcott, Mrs. R. B. Moyer, Dr. D. A. Weir, Miss Barbara Hartman, Mrs. R. E. Hutchison, and Mrs. Carl Russell.

A nominating committee of three, Wolcott, Dr. Weir and Mrs. Moyer, was elected by the board to nominate officers and executive committee at the next meeting, Feb. 11.

Russell F. Gimbel, director of the settlement, reviewed the activities of the organization the past year, and Black gave the treasurer's annual report. Mrs. Hutchison presided.

New activities added to the schedule at the start of the season, Gimbel pointed out, included three classes for colored girls and mothers and a bachelors' cooking class. The mothers are enrolled for both nutrition and sewing classes while the girls are organized for cooking.

The bachelors' cooking class the director explained is composed of 25 boys between the ages of 11 and 14 who prepare and serve a complete meal each Saturday noon. He said that the cooking and nutrition classes were made possible only through an agreement with the government whereby the settlement is eligible to receive surplus commodities. Otherwise the organization could not finance the expense involved.

Statistics in connection with the first full camping season at Hidden Hollow camp showed that 281 boys, girls and mothers were enrolled throughout the camping period. Of this number 190 spent one week or more at the camp and 91 spent at least three days. One week was devoted to mothers and babies only.

Gimbel called attention to the fact that Friendly House was the first organization in the city to institute the "penny" milk plan which is expected to help solve the malnutrition problem.

Probe Blaze That Drove 400 From War Plant Jobs

SIDNEY (NS) — Local and federal officials today launched an investigation into the fire which destroyed the new aircraft parts manufacturing plant of the Copeland Refrigeration corporation at Sidney.

The blaze broke out yesterday afternoon and more than 400 employes, many of them women, marched to safety from the one-story brick building. The structure, which covered approximately half a city block, burned to the ground.

Charles Curtis, vice president of the firm, said loss would total more than $750,000.

The plant was placed in war production last July and machinery in the factory was partly owned by the United States Defense corporation, a government subsidiary.

Meanwhile, Curtis charged that the Sidney fire department brought full equipment to the fire scene but refused to hook its hoses to the nearby Miami river because the site of the plant is just outside the corporation limits.

"This basketball is a very funny game," mused Mansfield Mentor Vern Hoffman, even as many another basketball tutor has ruminated reflectively before him.

"Now you take those Quakers we play tonight at New Philadelphia," went on Hoffman. "They will probably take us, but until they do, you take 'em.

"These New Philly Quakers must be all broken out with that brotherly love business, but they get their signals mixed. They're just as apt to slap a cheek as turn one.

"Here's the way it goes: New Philly gives Zanesville a beating. Dover is going along at a great pace and is undefeated when it meets Zanesville, and the Blue Devils trounce Dover.

"Meanwhile New Philly is compiling a winning streak of six or seven straight games, and when the Quakers and Dover get together in their Twin City battle, you would naturally expect New Philly to swarm all over Dover. Just from the record.

"But Dover upsets the bucket, trims New Philly 39-33, and breaks up the Quaker victory streak. Now we get New Philly tonight, probably on the rebound."

Hoffman reached for another wad of wax, at chewing which he is a past master in times of mental strain, and ruminated again: "Yes, this basketball is a funny game.

"Elyria beats us by one point. We beat Akron West by one point. Akron turns right around and wallops Elyria.

"Oh, well, when you're hot, you're hot, and when you're cold, you're cold, and no one's invented a thermostat yet to regulate the temperature of a bunch of bucket tossers."

Now who was it told me last spring that he went to Sandusky to see Mansfield and Fremont play in the district tournament, and although he had a good seat and all he missed the game almost entirely.

He was that busy watching Hoffman chew gum.

Vern makes a practice of filling his pockets with chewing gum, and he distributes a stick apiece to his heroes before the game, saving the rest for subs, and between quarters and halves and one time and another. But very often Vern gets excited and chews up the remaining gum and has hers go dry after masticating the initial end.

"I was so busy watching Hoffman ram one stick of gum after another into his mouth, I didn't see the game," the tournament fan informed me. "Pretty soon his jaw was sticking out like a wad of Climax."

Durocher Heads for Army Duty

Baseball Manpower Problem Increases.

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK — (AP) — Confronted by the imminent entry of Manager Leo Durocher into military service and with Pete Reiser and other stars already in uniform, President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers says "baseball's manpower question no longer is in the distance—it's here."

Durocher has been notified to report to a draft board for a physical examination, Rickey revealed yesterday. If he passes this "screen test" presumably he will be reclassified immediately from 3A to 1A and placed in line for an early call to colors.

The explosive leader of the Dodgers for the last four seasons will be 38 years old next July 23 and is married, but has no children.

This development caused Rickey to comment that "we're liable to go into spring training with only three infielders — Bill Herman, Arky Vaughan and Alex Kampouris."

Rickey said that right now the Dodgers have only 31 players on their reserve list and that this number was shrinking daily. "I don't think any club except the Phils will have fewer players when it goes to camp than we will have —and that's not a very desirable comparison."

He told of talking to Outfielder Dixie Walker, who is serving as recreation director at a plant of the Sperry Gyroscope company and who may keep the job on a year-around basis.

* * *

"When men of Walker's earning power in baseball consider quitting for some other job, which is not in itself a vital function to the war effort, but which he is thinking about keeping for the security it offers him in later years, then you have a real problem," Rickey commented.

Glasscock Gets 16 Points For Appleseed.

Johnny Appleseed's Pioneers came back with a second half rally last night to defeat Y. M. C. A. Juniors on the Appleseed floor 35 to 23.

The Pioneers got away to a 7-3 lead in the first quarter but the Juniors scored six points in the next frame while holding Appleseed to three and the score was 10-9 at the half.

Appleseed looked like a different ball club in the final two periods, displaying a fine passing attack and a tight defense to turn the contest into a runaway.

Paced by Bob Glasscock who totaled 16 points the Pioneers piled up 13 tallies in the third quarter to take a commanding 25-13 lead.

Each team scored ten points in the last stanza.

Glasscock was easily the standout of the evening firing in buckets from all angles. Gilbert led the Juniors' offensive with seven points.

The Victory Was Appleseed's third in five games. The Pioneer Reserves edged the Junior Reserves 15 to 13 in the preliminary tilt.

Indiana Blooms As Training Camp

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. —(AP)— Indiana's growing "grapefruit circuit" (without the grapefruit) had two more members today following announcement that the Cincinnati Reds of the National league and the Indianapolis Indians of the American Association would conduct spring training at Indiana university.

The Cleveland Indians were said to be negotiating for Victory Field, home of the Indians in Indianapolis; the Pittsburgh Pirates were reported seeking to close a deal with Earlham college officials for use of the fieldhouse and other facilities at Richmond, and representatives of the St. Louis Browns were said to be looking over facilities of Purdue at Lafayette.

The Chicago Cubs and White Sox will train at French Lick, only 55 miles from Bloomington, and the Detroit Tigers will be at Evansville, about 100 miles away.

Sport Roundup

NEW YORK—(AP)—It's a natural assumption that the first thing a fighting man ought to learn is how to fight and Col. Heinie Miller of the marines comes up with the idea that this requirement should make boxing the No. 1 sport. . . . Of course, Col. Miller, a former N. B. A. president, has more than a passing interest in boxing and there might be some good arguments in favor of water polo for sailors.

UNWILLING PHILOSOPHER.

After Texas A. and M. handed the Texas Christian basketball team a 53-26 licking, an Aggie fan approached Hub McQuillan, the T. C. I was stunned."

It's good news for linotypers that Ray Polczynski has left Marquette U. to join the navy. Ray is the kid who teamed with Johnny Strzykalski in high school football and was slated to do it again. . . . What's become of that tradition that a soldier never got a task for which civilian experience fitted him? Steve Wozniak, former national distance swimming champion, has just been transferred from an anti-tank outfit to the amphibian command.

Expect 150 Tourney Teams

Entries For Ohio Moose Event Close Saturday.

Prospects for a field of 150 teams in the second annual Ohio Moose bowling tournament starting at Colony alleys the week-end of Feb. 6, look very good, according to Art Hilborn, member of the tournament committee.

With the deadline set at midnight Saturday, there are now 83 teams entered in the tourney, with most of the cities near Mansfield yet to be heard from.

Mansfield is holding up its end of the entry list, putting 24 teams in the tourney although the Moose league here has only 12 teams. Other teams are composed of members who have been bowling in other leagues.

Entries have been received from Cleveland, Hamilton, Akron, Warren, Delaware, Lorain, Canton, Ashtabula, Ironton, Middletown and Wooster.

Entry blanks for 20 teams were mailed to Dayton, but the Dayton lodge has requested more.

The schedule and prize committee will meet Sunday, Jan. 24 to complete tourney arrangements. Members of the committee are, Harold Shaffer of Delaware, William Masavage of Cleveland, and Hilborn.

KILL 22,301 DEER

AUGUSTA, Me.—(INS)—Hunters took 22,301 deer from the Maine woods this season. Desire to supplement dwindling meat supplies apparently was responsible for an all-time record kill. Some 2,676,120 pounds of venison, with a value of nearly a million dollars, was made available for the table.

EVANGELISTIC SERVICES

EVANGELIST S. B. FOWLER

The Special Meetings at the Pentecostal Faith Chapel
57 South Diamond St.

—will continue every night except Monday this week and next. Tonight Evangelist Fowler will speak on the subject, "A MAD MAN MADE A GLAD MAN." Saturday night the subject will be "A SURE FOUNDATION." Sunday morning the subject will be "VESSELS OF GOLD." Sunday night "THE WEDDING IN THE AIR."

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC:

Effective Monday, January 18th, The Slicing Of Bread By Bakers Prohibited By The Food Administrator As A War Measure...So Now You Must Slice Your Own

HOW TO SLICE BREAD AND GET EACH SLICE EVEN

DON'T DO IT THIS WAY

1 Holding bread not parallel to board edge leads to uneven slicing. Don't start in middle of loaf.

2 Cutting through the top of the loaf tends to break slice at top; makes it uneven, ruins texture.

3 Don't look at the blade of the knife; if you do, the knife may cut on a slant.

4 A dull knife causes "shredding." Forcing knife through loaf results in ragged, uneven slicing.

INSTEAD DO IT THIS WAY

1 Hold bread parallel to board. DO NOT BEAR DOWN ON KNIFE!

2 Keep your eye on the point you want knife to cut through to.

3 Hold knife flat against loaf while cutting—straight up and down.

4 Use sharp knife with gentle sawing motion for clean, even slices.

GET WONDER BREAD

Slo-baked texture—easy to slice! Brings you Vitamin B1

You will want to save the important chart you see above.

These pictures show what not to do and what to do in order to slice today's unsliced bread and get each slice even—top to bottom and across.

Now more than ever before you'll appreciate the easy slicing, firm tenderness of slo-baked Wonder Bread.

In addition, Wonder Bread contains Vitamin B1. Which vitamin, science discovers, is necessary in order to help transform bread into energy properly.

And 3 out of 4 people fail to get plenty of Vitamin B1 in their diet naturally, according to figures from the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Then, too, Wonder Bread is doubly fresh—fresh when you buy it and fresh when you eat it.

So get this easy-to-slice, doubly fresh Wonder Bread from your grocer today. You'll be glad you did!

YANK DECIDES TO QUIT GAME

LONDON —(INS)— Cpl. Edward McCabe from St. Joseph, Mo., and member of the special U. S. Marine detachment in London has sworn off "black-jack"—at least for a while.

A few nights ago he lost just about everything except the latest letter from his girl in a game lasting four hours.

Today he has a sign hanging from his locker—where he can't miss it no matter what part of the room he's in. It reads: "I promise not to play black-jack again."

STOCK LEADERS ADD FRACTIONS DURING UPSWING

War Boom Cities Continue To Report Increases In Retail Sales:

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stock market leaders today added fractions to Thursday's upswing in early dealings.

At a quiet opening improvement was shown for Bethlehem, United Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Du Pont, Glenn Martin, Yellow Truck and Goodrich.

Merchandising shares came on for further study as Dun & Bradstreet found that, while war boom cities this week continued to report increases in sales at retail over a year ago, for the country as a whole public spending dipped under the comparable 1942 week by 2 to 6 per cent.

WEIRD PLAYERS IN FLYNN DRAMA

One Changes Coiffure in Court and Another Claims She's Exotic as Trial Goes on.

police that it was easy to get money from the suckers in this sucker town?"

"I beg your pardon," cried the indignant Miss Hansen. "I certainly did not."

Miss Hansen, whose misuse of the English language indicated she told the truth when she said she ran away from school in Lincoln, Neb., testified that she met one Armand Knapp when serving him a bologna sandwich in a Hollywood drug store; that he told her he could introduce her to Flynn; that he said she should play up to him, and that she did meet Flynn and sat in his lap at the dinner.

"You were playing up to him?" Giesler asked.

"Yes," snapped Miss Hansen.

Then, she said, he took her upstairs, removed her slacks, which were tight, and her underwear and attacked her.

"Didn't you object? Giesler" queried.

"I didn't have no objections," Miss Hansen replied.

Blushing occasionally, Miss Hansen admitted that she didn't learn the name of the first man she met in Hollywood, that she didn't discover Sammy's other name, even in a hotel room he rented for her, and that she wasn't sure about Bunny's last name but believed it was "Baker."

When she finished her testimony, Miss Boyer, the lady with the change-about hair, will tell about what she saw at the dinner party. Miss B. entered the courtroom a beautiful blond. She seated herself, wrapped around her head a turban which completely covered her head, pinned on some jet black curls, donned dark glasses and when time came to leave, walked away looking like Hedy Lamarr.

Miss Chi-Chi, who said she was "an exotic Cuban dancer," also had evidence to give concerning Flynn's farewell kiss on Miss Hansen's lips. The trial probably will adjourn over the week-end, with the affair Hansen still incomplete.

U-BOATS DRIVEN FROM CARIBBEAN

Axis Subs Fail To Make Any Attacks During Latter Part of December.

sence of Vice Admiral J. H. Hoover.

Admiral Hoover, whose headquarters are at San Juan, Puerto Rico, is supreme commander of the Caribbean, with supervision over both naval and army forces.

At Trinidad, Admiral Oldendorf is in charge of American and British naval forces as well as U. S. army aircraft.

In addition to San Juan and Trinidad, the navy also has headquarters at Guantanamo bay where Capt. George Weyler is in command.

The Caribbean frontier extends from latitude 25, near the lower tip of Florida, as far southward as British and Dutch Guinea.

All the resources available were hurled into the counter measures against the U-boat offensive. American and British destroyers and sub chasers, U. S. naval aircraft and army planes hammered back at the undersea prowlers. The rate of sinkings immediately began to decline.

In describing and summing up the present situation, Admiral Oldendorf said:

"For the last month, the Caribbean has been relatively free of enemy subs. I think they have transferred their operations to greener fields."

He indicated the U-boats have moved southward to prey on shipping along the South American coast and possibly had gone in force across the South Atlantic to operate along the African coasts and near Gibraltar.

Berlin Worried Over Fate of Volga Forces

Officers Reported Fleeing Stalingrad Area as Soldiers Get Death-Duty Sermon; Fierce Fighting Rages Around 22 Trapped Divisions.

(By Associated Press)

Adolf Hitler's armies on the lower Don, selling their lives at a rate of more than one a minute, were pictured in Soviet dispatches today as reeling back on the approaches to Rostov, while the Russians captured at least six more towns and killed 1,800 Nazis in 24 hours.

Soviet headquarters said the Red armies crushed repeated counterattacks by "big enemy tank and infantry forces" and continued to roll forward.

Simultaneously, the Berlin radio for the first time betrayed alarm over the morale of 22 Nazi divisions trapped in the narrow Don-Volga corridor before Stalingrad. In a special broadcast, the radio preached a death-and-duty sermon to Hitler's soldiers "who see no sense in holding on," and told them bluntly:

"Personal wishes are of no account. It is up to the soldier to carry out orders in a spirit of blind and unquestioning confidence."

The broadcast came in the wake of Soviet reports yesterday that high-ranking German officers were escaping from the Stalingrad trap by plane.

Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged the Russians were attacking with "unabated fierceness" in the vast battle area along the lower Don and in the Caucasus.

On the Stalingrad front, the Nazi command said German troops were defending themselves in bitter combat against continuous and heavy Soviet attacks.

The German command also reported sharp Russian attacks at Velikie Luki, on the central (Moscow) front, and in the north around Lake Ilmen and Lake Ladoga.

Today's Soviet mid-day communique said Russian shock troops, storming back through the ruins of a Stalingrad factory district, routed the Germans out of fortifications and houses, demolished 56 blockhouses, cleared a street and captured prisoners.

While the Red armies scored gains in three major sectors, Britain's smashing new air offensive turned from Germany to Nazi-occupied France, hitting the German U-boat nest at Lorient on the French Atlantic coast.

Two RAF bombers were listed as missing.

The British air ministry said Lorient was "heavily attacked" last night in the RAF's fourth successive night raid of the week. Previous assaults were directed at Germany's war foundries in the Ruhr, including the giant Krupp armament works at Essen.

Other developments in the global war saw quickening action in southern Tunisia, new RAF blows against Japanese-conquered Burma, and a surprise Allied attack on the Japanese in northeast New Guinea in which 116 enemy troops were killed.

CHANCE LOOMS FOR AIRPORT

McGregor Says He's Working For Part of U. S. Fund Canton Gave Up.

Efforts are under way at Washington by Congressman J. Harry McGregor to obtain for Mansfield's municipal airport at least part of a fund of $2,000,000 which had been allocated for air field development at Canton, plans for which have been abandoned.

War department officials, in allocating funds for local airports included in the Civil Aeronautics administration program a few months ago ignored Mansfield's application for aid although the army and navy for more than a year have been utilizing facilities for the elementary training of pilots.

In addition to the schools for the active armed services scores of pilots received their training at municipal airport before going to active duty in the coastal patrol service and the ferry commands.

McGregor indicated in a telephone conversation with The News-Journal, that Canton had decided it inadvisable to accept the $2,000,000 allocation due to the absence of a suitable site.

Boy Sees Train Afire, Mansfield Firemen Respond

There's a boy in the village of Ontario today who merits the plaudits of the Erie railroad for probably saving an empty eastbound train from destruction by fire last night.

Firemen from No 2 engine house here also were commended by Captain L. R. Zimmerman, acting fire department chief, for their work in extinguishing flames which destroyed the roof and walls of a wooden passenger coach and prevented their spread to other parts of the train.

When the train, composed of an Erie engine and about 30 Boston and Maine railroad coaches, was passing through Ontario the unidentified youngster attracted the attention of trainmen, by his shouts and pointing gestures, to flames which were lapping through the roof of a coach midway of the train.

Trainmen, while their carrier slowed to prevent wind-streams

Babies Dress Up, Munch Birthday Cake and 'Sing'

Yes, 'Twas a Very Special Occasion for Carol Ann, Sarah Lou and William Jerome Solomon Today.

By ESTHER SMITH

Mansfield's only set of triplets in 15 years celebrated their second birthday anniversary today by doing just what three little children would be expected to do on such a momentous occasion.

The son and daughters of Mr and Mrs. Carroll J. Solomon, 431 Edgewood road, wore their best frocks, pink ones they received for Christmas, they looked at pictures of teddy bears, puppies and even a lion on a stack of greeting cards, and they consumed a generous helping of birthday cake and ice cream.

Carol Ann, Sarah Lou and William Jerome—who arrived in that order at Mansfield General hospital, Jan. 15, 1941—were in a much better position today to appreciate a special occasion than they were a year ago when they were still spending most of the time in the nursery upstairs.

They had their dinner in the family dining room and they fed themselves the tuna fish, vegetable and baked potato served on their plates. Last year cereal and egg yolk were the main items on the birthday menu.

"The children are now able to help themselves a little bit," said Mrs. Solomon, who has a willing

SHELBY CYCLE CASE DELAYED

Hearing on Kit Sale Charge Deferred To Feb. 5.

CLEVELAND — (INS)— Hearing of an OPA charge that the Shelby Co. sold bicycle kits from which completely equipped bicycles could be constructed, formerly set for Jan. 15 by Judge Emerich Freed today was continued until Feb. 5.

James C. Gruener, OPA attorney, contended that the Shelby firm "operated a wholesale black market" in bicycles among 17 dealers in several states, including Ohio, Texas and Georgia, by disregarding rationing regulations.

PAIR MURDERED

Bodies of Mother, Daughter Found in Blood-Soaked Bed.

TULSA, Okla.—(AP) The savagely hacked bodies of a mother and daughter were found on their blood-soaked bed—victims of a sex slayer who raped them, then prepared a breakfast of eggs and toast and sat on the bed beside the bodies of his victims to eat it.

The slain women are Mrs. Luzzia Stewart, 50, and her daughter, Mrs. Georgia Green, 31. Their bodies, clad in brightly colored pajamas which had been ripped to shreds, were found last night by Mrs. Green's employers who went to the apartment to inquire about her absence from work.

It was the second murder in the neighborhood to follow the same pattern.

Weird Characters Play Roles In Flynn's Courtroom Drama

HOLLYWOOD — As weird an assortment of Hollywood characters as ever walked across the silver sheet came to court today to complete the story of Betty Hansen's night with Errol Flynn.

There was the handsome Flynn, himself, worried about the prospect of 50 years in the penitentiary if convicted on statutory rape charges. There was the 17-year-old Miss Hansen, who's story about her relations with a succession of men, made the kind of literature the train butchers used to peddle.

There also were the Misses Lynne Boyer, who changed from blond to brunet in 30 seconds flat, and Chi-Chi Toupes, a strip-tease dancer. They both entertained at a dinner in Bel Mansion, which ended, Miss Hansen charged, with Flynn taking her upstairs, undressing her, except for her socks, and attacking her.

Miss Hansen was to finish her story, under cross examination by Defense Attorney Jerry Giesler, and to deny as vigorously as she could his not-so-heavily veiled hints that she considered Flynn a sucker in a town of suckers.

"Didn't you," he demanded, "tell

SEE FIRE TRUCK DELIVERY SOON

McGregor Gets Priority For Mansfield; Ladder, Pumper Equipment Speeded.

Mansfield, accorded an A-10 priority through efforts of Congressman Harry J. McGregor, stands a "reasonable chance" of early delivery of vital fire-fighting equipment which has been on purchase order from two months to more than a year.

Service-Safety Director, Fred B. Wolff today reported that word from McGregor indicated that the Seagraves company, Columbus, is completing construction of an aerial ladder truck ordered two months ago with funds accruing from a special fire department levy and an appropriation by council, and that delivery could be expected "soon" under the A-10 priority rating.

In addition, Wolff said that Seagraves salesmen indicated recently that February delivery of a fire pumper ordered a year is contemplated if emergency priorities from other communities or war plants do not interfere.

Criticism to Wolff and Mayor W. J. Locke following the $75,000 blaze at the Hartman Electric company war plant Tuesday night were directed at the deficiencies of old or out-moded equipment and not at the fire department personnel, officials said today.

LAST MINUTE TALKS SET IN WASHINGTON

UMW Chief Troubled as He Reports Only 9,300 Out on Strike.

CONGRESS ANGERED

Ickes Warns That Government Could Take Over Mines. Raps Tie-up.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The War Labor Board made an eleventh-hour attempt today to settle the strike of miners in the hard coal fields of Pennsylvania in a desperate hope to prevent use of army troops to reopen struck mines.

While congress clamored for drastic action, the labor board called before it John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers the heads of 22 union locals conducting the outlaw strike, and representatives of five major coal companies whose mines have been closed.

Lewis, deeply troubled, carried with him reports showing that only 9,300 of the 90,000 miners in the anthracite fields were on strike. This was in contrast to unofficial estimates by the labor board that 18,000 were idle.

It was learned that Lewis, as long ago as Jan. 4, appealed to the hard coal miners not to strike in their demands for a $2-a-day wage increase. At that time, Lewis sent letters to be posted in all union halls in the hard coal fields calling for settlement of the miners' wage demands in "an orderly manner . . . so that victory can be had, not only on the battlefronts of the world, but on the production front of our mines and factories."

Sources close to Lewis denied

Her statement was in reply yesterday to a questioner who asked her if she did not feel that she should stop "gadding about" since the OPA ban on pleasure driving.

She told reporters in an interview that she traveled so much "because I am asked to do these things by people of various organizations."

SWOOP: Allied Ground Troops Smash Japs In Surprise at Lae

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA—In a sudden swoop on Japanese positions near Lae, Allied ground forces routed the enemy in a sharp battle and killed more than 116 enemy troops, it was announced today in a communique which reported widespread air attacks on enemy bases.

As American and Australian jungle fighters slowly closed in on the stubborn and well entrenched Japanese invasion remnants at Sanananda Point, on the Papuan coast of New Guinea, Allied units which have established themselves to the north in the jungles behind the Jap-occupied coastal fringe struck suddenly at the foe near Mubo, 10 miles south of Lae and approximately 115 miles north of the Sanananda Point battle area.

The battle was brief and bitter, and when the enemy fled they left at least 116 dead on the field, the communique said.

Meantime Allied aircraft of all types—fighters, attack planes, medium and heavy bombers—ranged over Japanese zones in the Lae-Salamaua area and swept east and west to New Britain and Timor in a series of unopposed attacks.

It was the second successive day bombers and fighters were over these areas and the effects of previous poundings was evident in the lack of Japanese resistance.

The communique made no mention of opposition of any sort.

Yanks Slash Toward Main Jap Lines

WASHINGTON —(INS)— American ground troops today are slashing toward the main Japanese lines on Guadalcanal while U. S. motor torpedo boats and planes are tightening the sea-air blockade around the embattled island to prevent supplies and reinforcements for reaching the enemy garrison.

ROUTED: Axis Subs Hounded Out of Caribbean Ship Lanes

(By International News Service)

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad—Hounded by an American counter-offensive, Axis submarines today have ceased their recent mass assault against strategic Caribbean shipping lanes.

The sinking of Allied ships in this area has been reduced strikingly within the past few weeks.

There was not a single attack by enemy subs during the latter part of December, indicating that the undersea raiders have found their Caribbean campaign too costly to continue.

Commenting on the withdrawal of Axis subs, Rear Admiral J. B. Oldendorf, temporarily in command of the Caribbean sea frontier, said:

"We cannot consider the submarine menace completely eliminated yet.

"It can be said that the subs—for the time being, at least—have retired from the Caribbean area. We hope to keep them away."

The navy, because of security reasons, has not disclosed the number of Axis submersibles that have been destroyed. Indications are that the American ships and aircraft have inflicted heavy and damaging blows against the U-boats.

Admiral Oldendorf is commander of the Trinidad sector of the Caribbean frontier. He currently is in command of the entire region during the temporary ab-

OPA APPROVES BID ON RATION BOARD PROJECT

Shelby Firm Gets Contract To Remodel Offices In City Building.

SHELBY—A low bid of $75.50 from Stacy Haun, Shelby contractor, today had been approved by OPA officials in Cleveland for the enlarging of the Shelby rationing board office.

The office at present uses only a small portion of the south end of the second story room in the city building. Under the remodeling plans, a partition would be extended north and south across the room to utilize it for the office.

Windows for the three rationing panels and relief office will be placed in the partition so that persons calling at the office can get the official they need by going to the right window.

LOUDONVILLE CLUB HEARS OF WOMEN'S WORK IN WAR

LOUDONVILLE—The Business and Professional Women's club January meeting was held at Weithoffs dining room with president, Elsie Hutchison, in charge of the business session.

Mrs. Forrest Heichel, chairman of the education committee, reported that the beginners' classes in typing, shorthand and bookkeeping are now under way. Unlike the usual 36-hour courses regularly offered for evening classes, the Commercial department of the high school has extended these to 40-hour classes, to give students additional hours of training.

Miss Helen Packham, of the Publicity committee, said there are still a few openings if any one is interested.

The club recognized invitation of the Chamber of Commerce to their annual meeting Jan. 19, which will feature a safety talk by H. F. Hillebrand of the Industrial Commission of Ohio.

Program topic for the evening was "Women In War Production" with Mrs. Helen Derrenberger as program chairman assisted by Miss Jean Powell. Miss Powell spoke of the many new fields of endeavor now open to women who are displaying amazing latent abilities as they take advantage of these opportunities for advancement.

Mrs. Derrenberger spoke of a similar situation existing in foreign countries, namely Canada, England and Russia, where some women are replacing men in the industries, others are making sacrifices on the battlefield and on the home front.

On the Tunisian front, in North ica, the Germans asserted 800 nch troops were killed and 15 ks destroyed when the French nched an attack toward Pont Fahs, 35 miles southwest of is.

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— Rationing or no, Harry F. Baily has his coffee every day—between 25 and 100 cups.

Envious coffee addicts, hold your fire. Baily happens to be president and official coffee taster at a Pittsburgh wholesale coffee house and it's his job to see that the product is blended properly.

In normal times, he tasted anywhere from 60 to 100 cups of coffee daily but now that there is a shortage, he has had to cut down to between 25 and 100 cups.

WLB CALLS MINE STRIKE MEETING

Summon Lewis, Operators In Effort to Halt Walkout In Hard Coal Mines.

that the miners were striking in protest over an increase in union dues which amounts to only about 33⅓ cents a month. They said that the miners striking were using the protest as cause for the strike so that they could not be accused of violating the union contract by walking out for wage boosts while a contract was in effect.

While the labor board arranged the meeting, Secretary of Interior Ickes called the strike "highly reprehensible." Asked what could be done if the miners continued to strike, Ickes replied:

"The government could take the mines over."

Such a step would entail use of troops.

Congress, meanwhile, was angry over the walkout. The Truman committee investigating the war effort, held a special session to consider the strike. It took no action pending the labor board hearing. But individual members of congress were loud in their denunciation of the dispute.

Rep. Colmer (D., Miss.) author of a "work or fight" bill, said "the time has come for a showdown on strikes." Rep. Smith (R., O.) urged a law to outlaw strikes for the duration. Rep. Satterfield (D., Va.) called the miners' strike "an unspeakable affront" to the nation. Rep. Eberharter (D.,Pa.) branded it a "disgraceful episode."

Sen. Truman (D., Mo.) chairman of the committee bearing his name, agreed with UMW officials that wages and not dues comprised the chief issue in the controversy. But he warned that giving in to the pay demands would lead to a differential between hard and soft coal miners and possibly result in widespread strikes in all coal fields.

Mine worker officials were troubled over government intervention in the strike, fearing that the strikers would interpret it as a sign that they may yet get wage increases. They reported that the strikers, who once numbered more than 20,000, were gradually returning to work at the insistence of union leaders.

Strike of 20,000 More Miners Delayed

HAZELTON, Pa.—(AP)—A strike call to an additional 20,000 miners in the Pennsylvania anthracite fields was held in abeyance today as insurgent union leaders reached Washington to "explain" to the war labor board a 17-day-old wildcat walkout in which 17,000 already are participating.

The tri-district anthracite committee, which had set today as a deadline for calling out the additional thousands it claims to represent, voted last night to postpone action until Sunday, when its leaders will report on the WLB hearing.

Committee members, together with miners already on strike, have demanded a $2 a day bonus over wages estimated unofficially to average $8.50 daily. They also have demanded elimination of a union dues increase, from $1 to $1.50 monthly.

Reports from the North African front indicate a renewal of the Allied offensive heading toward a decision for control of the whole North African area. Gen. Sir B. L. Montgomery's British Eighth Army is reported massing at Wadi Zem Zem for a renewal push on Tripoli, 165 miles away. On the Tunisian land front, the Allies everywhere were firmly holding their positions on the eastern slope of the Atlas mountains. U. S. Flying Fortresses smashed 44 enemy aircraft in a raid on the Axis airdrome at Castel Benito, near Tripoli. Last night they also raided Sousse and Sfax.

START WORK ON SUPPLY DEPOT

Contractor Arrives to Direct Preliminary Building of $3,000,000 Project.

Mansfield housing survey showing as available 88 single family homes, 30 halves of doubles and 67 apartments which, on the basis of 10,000 family units in the city, indicates a current vacancy of 1.85 per cent.

To attain the "critical housing" status the community must prove an availability of less than one per cent, John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the chamber, said today. At present government freezing of building materials limits purchases to $200 for certain repair purposes only.

The housing survey was made by the city's 37 mail carriers who, at the request of Postmaster H. E. Homberger and Secretary Routzon, are keeping a daily record of residence changes on their respective routes.

Thus far, Routzon said, six family dwellings have been acquired for engineers moving to Mansfield from Huntington and that an increasing demand is anticipated from officials of the contracting firm and other war department representatives.

"We anticipate the return of many Mansfielders," Routzon said, "from government projects at Marion, Sandusky, Ravenna and Newark. In many instances these workers gave up their homes here and necessarily will have to find new quarters on their return."

American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations officials here have been assured by government representatives that Mansfield's labor reservoir, which has a substantial reserve at present, will be called on to supply from at least 60 to 70 per cent of all workers, skilled and unskilled, to be employed at the depot.

50TH YEAR

Atty. Mansfield Named Again as Bank Director.

Atty. Edwin Mansfield, former Richland county common pleas judge and one of the county's veteran attorneys and business men, today had been re-elected to his 50th year as director of the Citizens bank at Shelby.

Now approaching his 82nd year, Atty. Mansfield helped organize the bank in Shelby in 1893, and is the only living charter member of the board. He also assisted in the organization of the Shelby Telephone company and the Ohio Seamless Tube company.

H. G. Hildebrant was re-elected president of the Shelby bank for the 24th year. Other officers include W. W. VanHorn, chairman of the board; C. C. Fish, vice president, and W. B. Kuhn, cashier and secretary.

The bank's annual report showed that government bonds totaling $1,705,200 were sold in 1942 as against $646,600 in 1941.

to their isolated troops, they assert that 'round-the-clock patrols have severed the main Jap supply lines to the island.

Success of the blockade was demonstrated again on the night of Jan. 10-11 when torpedo boats intercepted an undisclosed number of Jap destroyers off Guadalcanal and drove them off, after damaging two and possibly three of the warships.

Meanwhile, the navy said that the U. S. aerial offensive continued against enemy bases in the central Solomons as ground forces pressed on against Jap lines in the jungles and mountains on the western end of Guadalcanal.

The Japanese have been unable to move in supplies and reinforcements on any but a minor scale for more than two months, leaving the enemy troops without proper food or ammunition. Plight of the Jap garrison is intimated by the fact that American forces have encountered little resistance for weeks.

Wavell Joins Troops On Burma March

LONDON — (INS) — Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of British forces in India, was reported by Reuter's today to have gone into Burma to observe the progres sof British Indian troops marching southward toward the Japanese-held port of Akyab.

In a dispatch from the Burma front, Gen. Wavell was quoted as stating that he "came to look around the area."

The general arrived in Burma by air, landing at an airdrome constructed on paddy fields recently held by the Japanese.

An official announcement from New Delhi said meanwhile that Gen. Wavell had returned to his headquarters in India following a visit to the Arakan front in Burma.

MURDERER DIES

Negro Executed After Admitting Mass Rapings, Slayings.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Jarvis T. R. Catoe, 36, negro, confessed mass murderer of women, today was sent to his death in the electric chair for the slaying of Mrs. Rose Abramowitz in March 1941.

The negro was named in 10 rapings and five murders. New York charged one murder against him and he himself admitted another slaying in Washington for which another man is serving a life term in prison.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The navy today announced the retirement of Brig.-Gen. Edward A. Ostermann, adjutant and inspector of the marine corps since 1938, and his promotion to the permanent rank of major general. Ostermann was a native of Columbus.

from spreading the blaze, influenced a farmer living near the tracks to call the Mansfield fire department. From Central station Captain Zimmerman ordered a chemical truck from No. 2 to the Bowman street crossing to await arrival of the imperiled train.

Faulty pumping apparatus on the 1919 equipment prevented use of chemicals on the blaze but within two minutes a water line was laid from a High street hydrant. Railroad workers and neighbors aided in fighting the fire which started, investigators said, from defective wiring in the coach.

helper in her four-year-old daughter Mary Margaret. "She's very good with the children," Mrs. Solomon said of Mary Margaret. "In fact she just mothers them like a hen does little chicks."

Although several things happened today that were a little off schedule for the triplets they didn't permit their father to neglect the daily "singing" lesson. At least once a day, right after dinner, the children and Solomon get together in the nursery to "sing" for a while. "They do real good at it," laughed Solomon, "and they never let me forget when it's time."

Another innovation in the routine was a visit by the News-Journal cameraman and the reporter who had visited the triplets on their first anniversary. The trio posed like veterans while seated on the couch but voiced their displeasure the minute the photographer suggested they walk about for him.

While they actually said nothing they indicated that as far as they were concerned they would sit for the pictures and no more.

"They do talk a lot," according to their parents.

But just because the triplets let their parents speak for them this fact doesn't indicate that the children aren't friendly little folks. They're all of that for they shook hands and waved good-bye to their newspaper visitors. Then they toddled over to the window to watch the leave-taking and it appeared that they burst into gleeful laughter when this reporter slipped and took a very, very ungraceful tumble in the snow.

All of the triplets have gained in weight five pounds or more since their last birthday. Sarah Lou, who was a little on the light side last year now weighs 20 pounds, while William and Carol Ann tip the scales to 25.

REPORTS FRENCH SHIPS TO SAIL

News Agency Says Warcraft Under British Command.

BERLIN — (German Broadcast recorded by United Press in New York)—The Trans-Ocean agency, in a dispatch from Marrakech, Morocco, reported today that the Rabat radio station had broadcast that French warships at Dakar were preparing to put to sea.

"The ships, which include the 35,000 ton battleship Richelieu, have been placed under British command," the agency said.

(Although Trans-Ocean cannot have a corerspondent at Marrakech since Allied forces arrived in Morocco, it was possible it recorded the alleged broadcast at another point.)

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 15, 1943.

The pledge of the Atlantic Charter is of a system which will give every nation, large or small, a greater assurance of stable peace, greater opportunity for the realization of its aspirations to freedom, and greater facilities for material advancement.—Cordell Hull.

Project Will Benefit Mansfield

ANNOUNCEMENT of a three million-dollar war department construction project in the Mansfield area provides tangible evidence of the effective work that has been done in recent months to gain governmental recognition of Mansfield's desirability as the central point for some project related to the war program, preferably one which also promises post-war permanence.

While details of the planned air force supply depot have not yet been announced, stated requirement for "several hundred acres" and estimated expenditure of $3,000,000, gives an idea of size and importance, with likelihood that construction work will go far in providing jobs in the building trades for as many craftsmen as are unemployed and available in this city and vicinity.

Further information on this subject will undoubtedly be released for publication from time to time, but, as with other government activities which are a part of the national war program, all details will probably not be as freely discussed as is customary with peace-time projects of similar magnitude.

It is sufficient to know, for the present, that Mansfield is now destined to benefit by the work of the war industries committee of the Chamber of Commerce, with the co-operation of other interested groups and individuals. These things do not just "happen," but are the result of hard work on the part of persons who are willing to give time and effort, without compensation, in behalf of their community and its people.

Whatever part may have been played by The News-Journal in the widely discussed series of articles printed last July, in which comparison was made of Mansfield with Newark and Marion in the matter of industries associated with the war, it is known, as was mentioned yesterday, that these articles provided basic material for presentation of Mansfield's case to government officials and agencies responsible for the present selection of this area for an important project.

This is a recognized part of a newspaper's obligation to serve the best interests of the community of which it is a part—an obligation which The News-Journal at all times willingly and seriously accepts.

Railway Equipment Essential

REPORTS on the transportation problem leave the definite impression that this country is in danger of the same calamity that is perhaps fatally weakening Hitler's war machine, impairment of rail transportation. The load carried by the American railroads is increasing steadily, its weight slowly crushing the life out of tracks and equipment.

This year the burden will be much heavier, the necessity for speed greater, because the punch that will knock out the Axis must start rolling right here in this country—on the railroads. And still the railroads wait desperately for new equipment, while driving present locomotives and freight cars to the limit, with an efficiency that has amazed the nation.

Railroads have asked for authorization to buy 900 new locomotives, 80,000 freight cars and 2,100,000 tons of steel rail. Experts point out that this is the absolute minimum necessary to do the job. Already delay in approving the request makes it improbable that much new equipment can be delivered before late 1943.

Flynn Unfit for Diplomatic Post

SELDOM does the shoddiness of practical politics show through the purportedly fine raiment of high statesmanship to such an extent as in President Roosevelt's choice of "Eddie" Flynn, the New York Democratic boss, for the responsible post of minister to Australia and "roving ambassador and personal representative of the president in the southwest Pacific."

Consider all of the things that a diplomatic representative of the United States should NOT be—and Flynn fits the picture perfectly. He is a machine politician in the worst sense of that much stigmatized term and his experience has been gained in the center of this country's most offensive manifestation of "pay-off" politics—Tammany hall.

It is being urged that Flynn's nomination should be confirmed by the senate "as a gesture of senatorial courtesy to the executive department."

Quite likely Australia knows something about Flynn—or at least will know something about his record in the event he is sent there to represent the United States—and such an appointment may be regarded as reflecting on the senate, and on this entire country, instead of as a mere "courtesy" to the executive department.

Surely there must be some less offensive way in which Boss Flynn can be rewarded for his party service.

Canadian Party Changes Name

FOR ONE of the two major political parties to change its name is something almost unheard of. In this country both the Republicans and the Democrats have at times suffered defeats so severe that the life of the party was thought in danger. Yet both have survived, without change of name, to fight with better fortune another day.

In Canada the incredible thing has happened. The Conservatives, the leading minority party, who not so many years ago governed Canada, have recently taken some bad beatings. In the present parliament, elected in 1940, they have but 40 members out of 245. They have therefore gone outside of their ranks for a leader, electing John Bracken, premier of Manitoba. Before he would accept, he insisted on and secured the change of the party's name from Conservative to Progressive-Conservative. This reflects his own progressive tastes, and his ability to keep in office despite ordinary party ups and downs. He has been in office continuously since 1922, which is said to be longer than anyone else today in the whole British empire.

Another of those "perfect matches"—Ann Sheridan and George Brent—has gone on the rocks, and it sometimes seems as if the imperfect ones turn out better.

Reminder: It is equality of OPPORTUNITY—not equal ABILITY, that is guaranteed in America.

South Will Play Important Role

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—On war issues the new congress is a cinch. Members may differ as to fighting methods, but these possible differences will be based solely upon the contentions of rival proponents of 'em that respective programs are more effective than one another. It already is evident that there won't be a dissenter from a total victory policy, on general principles.

It also is obvious that combined Republicans and a large group of old-fashioned Democrats are in an anti-New Deal majority. Perhaps it isn't quite as compact as the pro-war bunch, but it's pretty solid.

How far this alliance will stick together on other issues, though, still remains problematical.

Post-war peace planning is what splits 'em.

Republicans, in the main, are for peacetime American isolation, but some of 'em favor world federation.

Pro and anti-New Deal Democrats likewise are divided both ways. The pro-New Deal faction undoubtedly is also pro-federation, but, among the Democrats, there also is a sizable disagreeing element, as witness Senator Burton K. Wheeler, an economic radical par excellence but a leading opponent of any alignment with foreign countries. Burton might naturally be expected to plug for internationalism, but he doesn't; he fights it tumultuously.

This middle alignment is uncertain. It will take more votes to tell the story.

Completely Scrambled.

Historically speaking, the Republicans should support a concentration of the executive powers of government and the Democrats should be against it. At present it's all scrambled. Plenty of Democrats are republican and plenty of Republicans are democrats.

About the only difference I can see between 'em is that they're of opposing political parties. Their dope is too confused to analyze.

Out of 435 members of the house of representatives there are 106 new members. The total is 222 Democrats, 205 Republicans and four miscellaneous, but that does not tell the whole story. The Democratic total consists principally of Democratic gains from the south, which notoriously is anti-New Deal—even counting them as Democratic New Dealers—which they're not, by any means, for the Democrats are principally anti-New Dealers. They're pro-warriors, but not economic reorganists.

The senate doesn't readjust as fast as the house of representatives does, not having as frequent elections.

Nevertheless, the senators are scared.

They've seen what happened to their representatives.

Senate results have frightened 'em.

South Fears Wallace.

Among other folk, they're afraid of Vice President Wallace. He's so all-out New Deal that he's considered alarming. He's more so than the president.

The verdict is that he talks too much.

The south doesn't like it.

Its reckoning is that he's an Iowa-ite, who'd better be discounted from the southern standpoint.

Southern senators don't like him. Nor do southern representatives.

In brief, it's too much a northern administration, from the Dixie angle.

You hear this from every direction on Capitol Hill.

And Dixie will be decisive in all sorts of ways at this congressional session.

It's tied up with the west agriculturally.

You can see this from the last election returns.

Industrialism's and agriculture's versions are somewhat cohesive.

So it appears in congress, anyway.

Farm and industrial legislators incline to get together.

On party lines they fight like fury.

Is War to Blame?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT should this war do to our children? We've seen what it has done to the Nazi youth—to the young Japs. What should we want it to do to ours?

Should we teach them to be loving and gentle, fierce and iron-willed at the same time? Teach them to hate, or forgive? Or is it possible to teach them anything? Will they come out of their blood bath unmitigated young savages?

There are the most terrifying questions the world has ever asked, not only for this next generation's sake but because they will determine the future of the world. And, for that reason, if no others, they should give you pause.

Now comes Anna W. M. Wolfe who tackles the whole subject with the greatest simplicity and sympathy I have found on this whole child subject, in her book, "Our Children Face War" (Houghton Mifflin Co., publishers). Mrs. Wolfe is an outstanding figure in the Child Study association, lecturing, teaching and writing; and she has an even more personal reason for understanding war-time America through her contacts with her own youngsters. Which, compared with flying a bomber or navigating a sub seems to me as complicated a job as any mere human can tackle today.

For here are young Jim and Dorothy or Phyllis and Steve who are aged ten and eleven. Cherubs today, chock full of light—just two pin feathers short of heaven. And by school time tomorrow they are the devil's own brew.

Mrs. Wolfe will lead you a long way about before you find the answer to that mystery. But you'll be far wiser when you, at last, arrive. For she does not lay the blame on the beastly business of war but rather on the complications and repressions of home life and its endless succession of hidden feuds, jealousies and resentments.

Give the child a happy, fearless home life, she says, and you won't need to fear the temptation and risks of war.

Hate and fear—they are the real battlefields and it didn't require Hitler, Hirohito or Mussolini to invent them. Most children are eager to co-operate if beloved and praised. But they dislike, as heartily, the parent who nags, humiliates or arouses their sensitive feeling of inferiority. And this hate may be protracted into a feud which warps his whole pattern of life.

What is the war going to do to your sensitive boy—your small, egotistical girl. Chances are, it's going to do to them exactly what you yourself have already done . . . bring to harvest the very seeds of hate, cruelty or exhibitionism which you have implanted.

Nothing very strange about that, is there? Can't you trace your own adult difficulties to some cruel word, some neglect or ridicule which your parents have already forgotten? How many years have you been embattled against a secret Axis of which the world never dreamed?

WE'RE TACKLING WAR FROM THE WRONG END. BEGIN IN THE HEART OF THE CHILD FOR WHAT IS SOWN THERE WILL SOME DAY DECIDE THE WAR.

A great book. Grab it—think about it! You may not be so innocent of the Pearl Harbor breeding in your home as you happily surmise.

Home Fronts and Global Strategy

National War Council Needed, Lack of Authority Is Handicap

—By HERBERT HOOVER

(This is the fifth in a series of six articles by Mr. Hoover.)

THE first principle in organization of the home front distilled by all nations from the last war is that civilian activities must be directed by single-headed responsible administrators.

The second principle is that all functions and authority in respect to a particular activity must be concentrated into the hands of one administrator. We can no more administer civilian activities in war with committees, boards or commissions than we can direct a battle with a committee. And we can no more have divided authority over one function than we can have independent generals in command of a battle.

Yet it was 19 months after we started large preparedness, before munitions was given a single head; it was over two years before oil, food, rubber and manpower were given single responsible administrators. There are still important executive functions under committee control. And of the administrators appointed, none of them have full control in their field.

Recommends War Council.

The third principle is that the head administrators of such major groups should comprise a war council sitting directly with the president. Here alone the general economic and civilian policies should be determined, the conflicts and overlaps planned out with the president present as the final umpire.

There was a war council or a war cabinet in every principal nation in the last war. There is one in every principal nation in this war except in the United States.

There are other principles as to co-operation with the public and the trades, the methods of price-fixing, removal of labor restraints on production, allocation of supplies, etc., in which hard-won experience has been ignored. That there is delay and confusion and enormous bureaucratic interference needs no proof. It lies all around the landscape.

There are some policies that should be determined at once by a national war council. We have two bottlenecks; one is manpower and the other is ships. In view of these bottlenecks, certain home front policies suggest themselves for immediate determination. And they need be related to global strategy itself.

For instance, to carry on a war of aggressive attrition we need give full emphasis to fighting planes. They can mostly transport themselves. We will be short of ships for another year. To transport American armies overseas requires three times the tonnage that is required to arm and support the manpower of our Allies. We are endangering the food supply to ourselves and our Allies by excessive drafts of manpower from agriculture.

See Confusion.

It is entirely possible that a realistic revaluation of our manpower, our bottlenecks and priorities in need would result in temporary release of soldiers already trained into producing food, ships and planes, or alternatively in the import of Mexican labor for our farms and the lengthening of the work week in our shops.

A realistic revaluation of our whole economic home front would reenforce some conclusions as to military strategy which I suggest in my next article.

We must admit that so far our spiritual front in this war is not as united as it was in the last war. The weakness today is not complacency or apathy. There is a great deal of bewilderment and confusion of purposes.

This is contributed to by the confusion in administration; by criticism of the divergent ideological purposes of our Allies; by the lack of confidence in the news of the war; by tiresome repetition of radio propaganda; by exceeding powers granted by the congress and by the widespread conviction that the purposes of our administration are not alone to win the war, but to use the war to change fundamentals of American life without submission to the people or their representatives.

Americans United.

Despite all this, the American people are united upon the defense of America from attack and are grimly determined to defeat the Germans and Japanese. I believe they are united upon securing lasting peace this time even if they have to use air planes to garrison it. No enemy need believe because we exercise our blessed right to debate, discuss and differ between ourselves, that we are not united upon his defeat.

On the military front we have magnificently courageous sons. We can have every confidence in our generals and admirals. Men and officers alike are performing stupendous deeds. They merit everything we have got.

We have the blessings of huge industrial equipment and managerial initiative created in the mils of private enterprise. It is equipped with skilled workmen and farmers. Failures in administration interpret themselves in delay of the war; in unnecessary hardship on civilians and increased problems after the war. But we will win the war.

Sunday: "How the Home Fronts Will Affect the Outcome."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—In less than 72 hours after the opening of the 78th congress the temper of that body became apparent.

President Roosevelt's otherwise highly praised message to Congress on "the state of the Nation" was accused of being a bid for a fourth term in 1944.

Rep. Harold Knutsen (R.-Minn.) touched off a legislative bombshell by introducing a bill which might terminate the reciprocal trade treaties now existing between this country and 25 other nations and take from the president and the state department the right to negotiate additional treaties.

Sen. Gerald P. Nye (R.-N. D.) demanded an investigation of the food shortage situation, including Lend-Lease allocations.

THE FARM bloc introduced bills or announced legislation in preparation to: (1) Revise parity prices to include increased labor costs; (2) force existing agencies—including the armed forces—to take care of the farm labor shortage; (3) open the door on farm machinery, now closed because of priorities.

The self-announced appointment of Ed Flynn, national Democratic committee chairman, to become a minister to Australia brought immediate challenge that he would be investigated before his appointment was ratified—if it was.

The anti-poll tax bill was revived. The silver-bloc opponents, reintroduced bills which not only would make treasury-held silver available for war and commercial purposes, but would repeal outright the Silver Act under which the government purchases all available silver.

SENATOR VANDENBERG (R.-Mich.) assured an airing of the muddled Puerto Rico situation by introducing a bill to limit the tenure of the governor there to two years. Others introduced bills to investigate the food shortage and political aspects of our Caribbean outpost government. If the senator's bill were passed, Gov. Rexford Guy Tugwell would have to be reappointed and his reappointment confirmed by the senate after investigation of his regime.

Investigation of Lend-Lease became almost a certainty. Fire was centered on Harry Hopkins, chief spokesman for and representative of the president in Lend-Lease matters.

Forces were gathering also for an attack on that $25,000 net limitation on salaries.

Bills were introduced to overthrow some administration labor legislation—notably to lengthen the work week, outlaw strikes in war industries, and prevent racketeering in labor unions.

Sen. W. Lee O'Daniel (D.-Tex.) reintroduced his anti-labor union bills and revived his drive to forbid the sale of liquor near military camps.

It looks like a merry time for this 78th congress.

2. What three large cities are the highest in the United States?
3. Why is a certain quarter of Paris called the "Latin Quarter"?

A draftee has been discovered in the army who was taken in despite the fact that he had 11 children, was on relief, has stomach ulcers and is a little deaf. It costs the government $190 a month to keep him and his family as well, but it seems to me it's worth it, from the amusement angle alone.

He's Private Anthony Christian, 38 years old, and he's in the air corps and very happy about it too. Mrs. Christian and all the children are doing all right, too, and Anthony ought to make a grand soldier. No other soldier in the army has so much concentrated rooting for him.

A Farmer's Diary

Ten Years In Debt

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I SAW him at the city market. "Come outside," he said. "I've something to show you."

I went along to his pick-up truck, parked along the curb.

"You're looking better than when I saw you last," I said.

"That was three years ago," he remembered. He pulled a bushel crate of potatoes back to the sloping endgate, and observed my expression as I examined them. They were washed and graded, as clean and even as fancy apples. "I get more'n $2 wholesale for them, and I've had 500," he told me. "Those four cases of big white eggs, up in front, I'll get 45 cents a dozen for. It's fun to raise and market topnotch stuff, but it took ten years of dreamin' about it to get me started. This is the first year I've been able to buy fertilizer and tools to raise spuds."

"But you've been farming—haven't you?"

"No—I worked ten years in a shop—struggled hard and didn't seem to get anywhere—only kept my land, and let my children grow up. They all know what good hard work means, and how to support themselvs. Two boys are in the army—the three girls are married—we've got two grandchildren."

"I didn't know you had hard luck," I said.

"We don't aim to call it that. During the last depression I got hold of a farm that promised to yield oil. Neighbors on three sides of it had wells that yielded hundreds of dollars a month. They drilled on mine—and didn't get a drop! Then the depression struck, and to cap it all, I got sick. I mortgaged the farm for all it would take, to pay bills and keep the children in school. When I got out of the hospital, I wasn't able to work. My wife worked for two years, wherever she could get a job as practical nurse, and I stayed home. That was tough! We borrowed money to keep the home together—and we had other debts.

"I got desperate and went to an attorney. He suggested that my best way out was bankruptcy—'wouldn't cost much, and I could pay the bills I chose, later.'

"We talked it over at home—all of us. We decided bankruptcy was for poorer folks than us—folks without any means of earnin' like I knew I could, as soon as I'd be well.

"So then we started that ten years of hell. We had twenty creditors and some of them were heartless. They knew the minute I got a job again, and they tried to attach everything I had. The only place that would loan me money were the highest interest places—but they were fine, especially when they got to know me—and believe me, they did!

Well—I'm a boring you—it's over now! I'm free again to do the thing I like, and the only folks I owe are those who help me finance my farm—and they're my friends. Farm financing has made wonderful strides since I started out—ain't it the truth?"

Suits Favored for Late Winter

Suits with a dress-up air are the favorites for mid-winder wear. They are worn for luncheons, matinees and 5 o'clock dates under coats, because they are both smart and warm. Some of the suits are in pastel colors, others are in bright hues, and there are many in black. Orry Kelly designed the suit worn by Ann Sheridan, left. It is made of dull surfaced black wool accented at the collar with a shirred ruff of rust and gold plaid satin. Evelyn Keyes, center, wears a suit in two contrasting colors. It is made of soft nubby wool with a long red jacket bound in black that has a three-button closing. The skirt is black and with the suit she wears black hat, purse and shoes. Brenda Marshall, right, prefers the lighter shades and is shown wearing a rose beige suit. The collarless jacket fastens at the waist with a large black jet button, her blouse is of black sheer wool and her chapeau and muff silver fox.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, January 16.

Although there may be much incentive and inclination toward stepping into the limelight on this day, with bids for cooperation from large corporations, political or welfare bodies, yet there may be strange angles or surprising or unconventional twists that may make it advisable to give serious consideration before "signing up" with such forces. Be prudent.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of much opportunity and productiveness, especially in public positions of importance, or in collaboration with political, diplomatic, spiritual or secret organizations, which promise worthwhile returns, with probable public rewards or honors Old things rather than novel thrive.

A child born on this day may have many advanced aims and aspirations, which may attain rich fruition, probably in the public eye Also there may be curious difficulties or obstacles to be prudently dealt with.

THEATERS

New Comedy.

The ambition to become supersleuths get two continuity writers into all kinds of trouble, most of it funny, at least to the audience, in the Bud Abbott and Lou Costello co-starring comedy, "Who Done It?" opening Saturday at the Ohio. They don't bargain for the difficulties that arise due to their act but they manage somehow to extricate themselves from the situation. Patric Knowles, William Gargan and Louise Allbritton are in the cast.

Underground Thriller.

Miss Main plays "Tish" and the other two comediennes are the former's cronies. St Luke's choristers appear in the picture. "Apache Trail," a western thriller with Lloyd Nolan and William Lundigan is the co-feature.

Western Musical.

"Sons of the Pioneers," one of the outstanding cowboy musical organizations in the country, appears in Roy Rogers' starring picture by the same name playing at the Park. "Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary was prompt with consolation, although I guessed that she shared my malicious pleasure in the discomfiture Redfield had suffered at Philip Veritzen's hands.

"I don't wonder you're sore, Steve," she said. "That wasn't a bit clubby of my revered papa-in-law. But you must remember that you had committed lese majeste in its most flagrant form by daring to summon the great impresario to see you. It's a wonder he didn't bring an axeman and have you guillotined on the spot."

Steve's malevolent expression did not lighten, and I made up my mind that as soon as I could I would ask my father that the espionage on Steve be increased, for I was sure his mood held danger of injury to both Mary and Veritzen.

have done that,' Steve said mo- "I'd about as soon he would tosely. "He killed the spirit and hope and soul in me. He might as well have killed the body."

Superb Acting.

He was acting superbly now. He was enjoying his own suffering, but Mary was quick to deflate him.

"Bravo, Steve!" she said, laughing and clapping her hands. "That's a swell line, gorgeously rendered. It's too bad you can't incorporate it in your role Auntie Madge will have to write you a play around it, so you can spout it."

"I'll never have a role again," Redfield said somberly. "Veritzen will see to that."

"What do you mean?" Mary asked quickly, and I knew that behind the query there was a distinct hope. "Did he say you were no longer connected with the company? That is one of his pet tricks—severing relations with an actor without notice if he gets angry. He's had many a lawsuit, many a headache because of his hastiness, but he never learns."

"He didn't say it in so many words, but I could see that's what he meant," Redfield said.

Mary looked into the venomous eyes of her leading man

"How many times have I asked you, Steve, to repeat his exact words?" she adjured him "Now I have an appointment in just 10 minutes, and if I'm going to listen to you, you must make it snappy."

I knew the reason for her insistence. She was wild with anxiety lest Noel come back. If he found Stephen Redfield there he would be so furious at the actor's effrontery in coming after the last night's episode, that he might disregard my presence and that of Winters, and attack the actor again.

But Mary's adjuration to Steve seemed to have found its mark, for he began to speak rapidly, with anger in every syllable.

"He told me," he said, "that under no circumstances would he permit me to undertake my role tonight. He said that in the first place I could not do justice to it in my present mental and physical condition, and that he would not risk my reputation—nor his—on the chance that I might not come up to standard."

"That's only what he was sure to say, Steve," Mary commented. "You know how fussy he is about every detail of a production."

"And yet," Steve said stormily, "he's willing to risk an understudy in the role. No, I tell you, that's all boloney. It's a plot to get me out of the cast, and you're in it because you've fallen for Hayes."

Mary was on her feet, and there was fiery anger in her eyes and in every line of her lithe body.

"One more word like that and you go out of here pronto," she said, and I knew she was sharing my temptation to blurt out to the actor that his days with the cast were already numbered, not because anyone wanted to have John Hayes supplant him, but because my father had discovered Steve's subversive activities.

But the time for that revelation was not yet ripe, as Mary evidently remembered.

"You have now only five minutes," she told Steve. "Tell me what else my father-in law said, and if there's any of the five minutes left, I'll tell you what answers I know."

The spade J was won by the A and the diamond Q finessed, after which the A dropped the K and the rest of the suit was run. This gave South four tricks in diamonds, two in spades, one in hearts and two in clubs for a game

Just notice what would have happened if West had come up with the K on that first diamond. It would have obliged South to put on the A from dummy, as otherwise West could have set him with his established two hearts. After that, it would have been impossible to score more than one more trick in diamonds, making all told for South only two tricks in that suit, two in spades, one in hearts and two in clubs, or two less than he needed for his game contract.

Suits Favored for Late Winter

Suits with a dress-up air are the favorites for mid-winder wear. They are worn for luncheons, matinees and 5 o'clock dates under coats, because they are both smart and warm. Some of the suits are in pastel colors, others are in bright hues, and there are many in black. Orry Kelly designed the suit worn by Ann Sheridan, left. It is made of dull surfaced black wool accented at the collar with a shirred ruff of rust and gold plaid satin. Evelyn Keyes, center, wears a suit in two contrasting colors. It is made of soft nubby wool with a long red jacket bound in black that has a three-button closing. The skirt is black and with the suit she wears black hat, purse and shoes Brenda Marshall, right, prefers the lighter shades and is shown wearing a rose beige suit. The collarless jacket fastens at the waist with a large black jet button, her blouse is of black sheer wool and her chapeau and muff silver fox.
